ABOUT ME

I'm a Brazilian visual artist, illustrator, and designer and I will use my work as a vehicle to fight for wildlife conservation, animal rights and against climate change. I'm also a writer and a poet. I studied Graphic Design for a year (class 2017/18) at the best school in Brazil, Centro Universitário Belas Artes de São Paulo. I joined the 2021.1 class for the Youth Climate Leader program and I'm soon to be a YCL Fellow. Currently working on my first book commission, a book of memories of Brazilian women in science for Instituto Angelim (São Carlos/SP). In 2021, I created The Starling Revolution, an independent artist-led coordinated creative project who uses the power of art, exploration, and storytelling to protect the wonders of the planet by informing, inspiring, and connecting people. Starlings imbue in us the significance of family and community and of learning how to co-exist with the people around us, promoting a symbolism of love, peace and unity
